MARCH 2014

A Note from the President ...

SPRING FEVER

I'm feeling a bit giddy. March does that to me. Its capriciousness energizes and inspires me. A personal call for creativity kicks in. I find myself watching for workshops, seeking out collage artists, flirting with found items and attempting to make masterpieces from mayhem. If you're like me (and I suspect I'm not alone) we're in luck, because CAA's March events aim to please.

In a workshop on March 4, master book artist and most generous instructor Jeannine Stein led participants in creating A Collaged Book in a Box. Her workshop beautifully and effortlessly combined the arts of bookbinding and collage, which resulted in an extraordinary collection of individual "books in a box."

On March 28, mixed media artist Jon Measures will be the guest presenter at CAA's general meeting. Jon grew up in England and now resides in Los Angeles. From his unique perspective, Jon's artwork incorporates prints of his photographs of urban Los Angeles into collages that are worked with paint to add texture, layering and color. His work can be found at galleries across Southern California.

CAA's upcoming online juried exhibit SQUARED is an opportunity to show your collage art globally, via the worldwide web. Don't hesitate to enter this exhibit! Deadline for entries is April 1, 2014. (I've already begun flirting with my stuff as I attempt to assemble a masterpiece.)

Keep on creating!

With warm regards,

Marian Devney

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CAA GUEST ARTIST

March 28, 2014

JON MEASURES

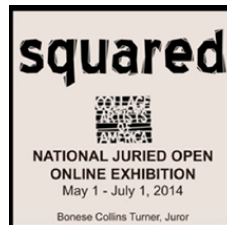

Jon Measures is a British mixed-media artist based in Los Angeles. After receiving a degree in Fine Art from Falmouth School of Art in 1987, Jon spent time in Manchester and London before settling in Los Angeles in the late 1980s. He has consistently produced art while enjoying a successful career as a graphic designer, illustrator and educator. Over the past three years, Jon made the transition from a working designer to a full-time exhibiting artist.

Jon's artwork portrays his interest in representing not only the physical environment but also a view of the emotional nature of places and our connections to them. His mixed-media paintings incorporate digitally edited photographs, drawings and paintings that are first printed out and collaged on wood panels then further worked using acrylic, glaze and spray paint to add texture and color. He describes his process as a hybrid of painting, drawing, photography, digital art and collage, combined to echo the layering of structures and history that takes place in our built environment. The work is both a critique and a celebration of our constructed spaces.
