OCTOBER 2015

A note from the President...

CAA's new fiscal year started off with a wonderful presentation by Alexandra Grant at our meeting on Friday, September 25. Alexandra took us on a fascinating visual journey of her influences and her artwork, employing lettering and "Rorschach" images as source material.

Alexandra is currently exhibiting in a collaborative show with Steve Roden at Pasadena Museum of California Art. "These Carnations Defy Language" will be on view through November 1, 2015. In a review in the Los Angeles Times, Sharon Mizota observed: "Both have long been inspired by language, often using it to generate colorful, intensely heartfelt abstractions. Side by side in this gently moving show, their drawings and collages have something of a familial resemblance, deploying dense networks of grids, stripes and triangles with vibrant, organic energy."

A big thank you to Ken Ronney for installing the skylight cover at SFVACC. It will be closed during CAA meetings so that digitally-projected images are sharp and bright -- and no one will have sun in their eyes!

I also want to thank Susanne Belcher for volunteering to be CAA's Publicity Chairperson. You can be assured our events will be well publicized!

Mary Guzman's upcoming assemblage workshop "3-D Relic Dolls" will be held at the SFVACC on Wednesday, October 14. Information is included in this newsletter. Sign up now!

Christel Thompson is doing an amazing job gathering items for our raffle and Second Chance table. With such a wide variety of materials available, any one of them may show up in a winning artwork one day... ya never know! Proceeds from the raffle and Second Chance support CAA's Scholarship Fund, so we thank you for your contributions!

Jury Day for our upcoming exhibit "Small Works of Great Art" is Saturday, October 10 at my home in Sherman Oaks. Please read the prospectus carefully for entry details. Opening reception and awards presentation at Towns Burr Gallery is Saturday, November 7, 2015. Mark your calendar and invite your art appreciators! Should you have questions regarding this show, Shawn K. Riley can answer them.

A reminder that all entrants must be current CAA members; dues will not be accepted on Jury Day. Have you paid your 2015-2016 dues? If you're not sure, contact Membership Chair Anita Van Tellengen for confirmation of your status.

We are in the process of updating and transitioning our website to a membership-oriented platform, Wild Apricot. It will have a new look, but content and form will remain familiar and the web address www.collageartists.org is the same.

More to come as future workshops and exhibits are in the works. Enjoy this newsletter with lots of information you will want to know!
